William Lynch's Entertaining Story of Affairs in Old Erin.

Prosperity and Union Are Now Awaiting the Advent of Freedom.

Law of Silent Contempt Has Brought About a Wondrons Change.

William Lynch, the retsil dry goods and notions merchant at I40 East Market atreet, returned home on Friday night Six weeks of this time was spent in Ireland, while the other two weeks were spent in going to and coming from hils native land. Mr. Lynch talked entertainingly of his trip to a representative of the Kentncky Irlsh American. Verlly Mr. Lynch's story of the transformatiou that has taken place in Irelaud is one that ought to carry unspeakable joy to every heart that draws a drop of Irish blood. It means that Ireland is prosperous, that Ireland is united. Certainly union and prosperity should bring freedom. Mr. Lynch saya himself:

"If you travel in Ireland for comfort the counties Cork, Waterford, Kilkenny and Clare, and saw a marvelons transcontent and poverty I saw prosperity, King Edward. The greater part of my sojourn in Ireland I spent with my brother and sisters in the County Cork. They were all well, contented and happy. It was my first visit home in seventeen

It was good news and I received it all with a hundred thousand welcomes; hut they told me that the agricultural classes in Ireland were people in England, Scotland or Wales. "I was in the city of Cork when King

Edward and Queen Alexandria visited there. I saw them three times in one day. They were greeted with an enthusiastic welcome by 90,000 people, whlie 9,000 troops were in line. The people believe King Edward has the will and will find the way to do them a great

There is a welcome for all in Ireland, says Mr. Lynch, save the "landlord" and with his ocean trip and met many nice people both going and coming from Ireland. On the way to this country there were many Irlsh-Americans and just enough English and Scotch to make things interesting. They had many pleasant argumenta and discussed everything. including "the new Ireland," the negro and the Kentucky mountain feuds. And said Mr. Lynch:

"The pleasantest feature was the last concert we had aboard ship. Nine ont of twelve members were Irish. In the crowd were five priests en route home from Rome. One of them was an American and a convert. He had a magnificent voice and no one had to beg him to sing. On this last night he sang an Italian air that was beautiful. Catholic young men all over Kentucky are very much interested in the forthcoming meeting of the Grand Council of the Young Men'a Institute, Kentucky jurisdiction, which will be held in this city September 20, 21 and 22. Many councils have elected delegates and the three local councils have appointed committees to receive and entertain their guests from other points in the jurlsdiction of Kentucky.

Grand Secretary George J. Lautz has one to Owensboro, where he will organlze a councii tomorrow. The new conncll will begin with about forty-five charter members. Formerly there was a ouncil of the Young Men'a Institute at Owensboro, hut it dropped out of existance about five years ago. It was known as Sorin Conneil.
